CHARLES W. MOWER.

TWO YEARS I SUFFERED AND AT LAST WAS CURED BY GRODER'S SYRUP.

Charles W. Mower, Wholesale Meat Dealer, East Vassalboro, Maine.

For two years I suffered everything but death. Headache, distress after eating. At no time was I free from pain, until I commenced to use Groder's Botanic Dyspepsia Syrup, and I at once commenced to gain. My head felt as though the bandage had been loosened, and the distress in my stomach was less frequent. Today I am a well man, free from pain, and can eat any kind of food at any time. For two years I have been free from Dyspepsia, so you see it is a permanent cure. The curative power of this medicine is truly phenomenal. I recommend it for any kind of stomach trouble.

KICKED IN THE RAIN.

Colby Classes Played Football Notwithstanding the Weather.

[Special to the Press.]

WATERVILLE, November 11.—The first in the series of class football games was played on the delta this afternoon between '92 and '93, and despite the rain, which at times fell almost in torrents, a close and exciting game was the result. The calling of the game was delayed for a time owing to some discussion as to whether Stowe, a special student, should be allowed to play with '93. After considerable talk Captain Swett allowed Stowe to play, but it should be remembered that special students belong to no class.

Wilson secured the first touchdown for '92, from which Downes kicked a goal. Ninety-three slowly pushed the ball to '92's goal and Carleton scored a touchdown and kicked a goal. One of the prettiest plays of the game was made here, when Mann, by excellent dodging, scored '92's second touchdown. Downes missed the goal. Carleton scored '93's next touchdown, but fouled at the try for goal. Mann broke through the line, dodged well and another touchdown was placed to '92's credit, and Downes kicked the goal.

At the beginning of the next half Carleton won made a touchdown and kicked a goal. Ninety-two had forced the ball down to '93's goal, when the game was called on account of darkness, with the score 16 to 16. Carleton's work was something remarkable. With three or four men clinging to him he would often make 10 yards. He seemed to break through the line where he chose, and his blocking was very effective. Mann played a brilliant game, gaining a clear field at two different times, after breaking through the centre.

THE WOMEN AND THE FAIR.

Proceedings of the World's W. C. T. U. Convention at the Hub.

BOSTON, November 11.—In the World's Woman's Christian Temperance Union Convention this afternoon Miss Bowers, representing the W. C. T. U. of British Columbia, moved that the World's W. C. T. U., in convention, earnestly request the board of managers of the Columbian Exposition to prohibit the sale of intoxicants upon the grounds at any time and to close the exhibition Sundays. Lady Henry Somerset moved that the same officers be requested to require purity in art exhibitions. Both resolutions were unanimously adopted by a rising vote.

Miss Willard announced the death of Mrs. Sarah J. Downs, president of the New Jersey W. C. T. U., and the convention sent a message of condolence to her family.

On motion of Miss Willard and Mrs. Hannah Whitall Smith, Mrs. Mary Clement Leavitt was made an honorary president of the W. C. T. U. The election of officers of the World's W. C. T. U. followed, as follows:

President—Miss France E. Willard.
Vice President at Large—Lady Henry Somerset.
Secretary—Anna Jordan, Boston.
Treasurer—Miss Williams, Canada.

SEARCHING FOR OLD OCEAN'S WAIFS.

Once Proud Vessels Now Drifting Hither and Thither at Sea.

Some of Them Are Still Worth Pretty Good Sized Fortunes,

And an Effort Will Be Made to Bring Them to Port.

NEW YORK, November 11.—The gales and heavy weather of the last month have added many derelicts to the number of such wanderers, and the idea of reward has tempted several vessel agents and tug owners to send out vessels to search for those nearest the coast whose cargoes are known to be valuable. In many cases these vessels are comparatively new, and they have been abandoned owing to their being dismasted and uninhabitable.

Many of these vessels have been drifting here and there for months, and scarcely a day passes that some one of them is not reported by incoming vessels. The records of the Hydrographic Office, where such information is received and arranged, show that on October 31 there were 27 wrecks adrift in the North Atlantic Ocean. Of these but 13 are known by name, the others being so submerged as to prevent their names being seen. These wrecks float in various positions, depending to a great extent upon the cargo carried. Some are sunk forward; others have the bow well out of water. Some lie on one side, while others are totally capsized. When the masts are standing and the hull shows well above water, these wrecks can be seen more readily; but they are certainly dangerous customers when the night is misty and dark, and they are so little above water as to be scarcely visible.

The American schooner Wyer G. Sargent, which was loaded with lumber, was abandoned March 31 near Cape Hatteras. Her erratic wanderings have been reported at irregular intervals ever since. She was last seen on September 20, in latitude 33° 10', longitude 38° 10', having drifted more than 2400 miles. She has a cargo of mahogany which has been estimated to be worth fully $60,000.

Another famous wanderer is the bark Progress, which was abandoned June 12 last in latitude 46° 20', longitude 40', just after she had passed through a hurricane. She has been seen many times since, as she is floating high and is wafted here and there by the winds, being but little affected by the current. The latest report from her was on October 4, when she was passed by the steamer Pennsylvania. At this time a close observation showed that her masts were sadly broken, the rigging was hanging loosely in all shapes, the hatches were open, and the seas were washing in and out at every roll. Lying so close to the steamship routes to Europe, she is well known, if not avoided, by all the captains along that route.

The following table gives some interesting figures in regard to these wanderers of the sea:

Name.	Nationality.	Built.	Length, Feet.	Tonnage
Steamer Devonshire	English	1888	316	2,317
Ship Annot Lyle	English	1861	195	1,246
Bark John E. Chase	American	1868	152	634
Bark Progress	Norweg'n	1865	115	349
Bark Nicollette	Dutch	1865	170	1,004
Bark Oliva	Swedish	1873	153	752
Bark Carricks	Norweg'n	1867	137	913
Brigantine Clara	English	1886	111	229
Schooner Little Wonder	Unknown.
Schooner Wyer G. Sargent	American	1881	131	309
Schooner Fannie E. Wolston	American	1887	121	295
Schooner Tamos	American	1881	141	369
Schooner B. L. Burt	American	1881	163	720
Total				9,137

Of these vessels the steamer Devonshire was abandoned last month about 550 miles west of the Irish coast, and she is perhaps the most valuable. The Tamos was valued at $8000, and her cargo of yellow pine lumber was worth from $7000 to $10,000. The Annot Lyle carried 10 men and was valued at $25,000. Her cargo of deals was valued at $20,000 to $25,000. The Wyer G. Sargent was valued at $15,000, and her cargo of mahogany has already been stated as valued at nearly $60,000. These are but a few instances of the fortunes now adrift on the ocean, but from these a careful estimate would show that a minimum valuation of the derelicts would be fully threefourths of a million dollars.

It would seem that the business of searching for many of these vessels would be lucrative, as any one of them would prove to be a small fortune when delivered in port, notwithstanding the claim still held upon it by the owners. It should not be a very difficult matter to find them. It is said that the Red Star tug International will make a trial. It bids fair to be a profitable business, and at the same time it would benefit commerce by ridding the ocean of these dangerous obstacles to navigation.

BEHRING SEA AGAIN.

Points of the Sayward Case Repeated in This One.

WASHINGTON, November 11.—The legal contest begun by counsel for Great Britain to have declared illegal the seizures of sealing vessels in Behring Sea was continued in the United States supreme court today, when the case of the American schooner Sylvia Handy, seized in 1887 for seal poaching, was argued. The case is similar in nearly all its phases to the celebrated Sayward case, except that the vessel is an American and not a Canadian sealer. The owners of the Sylvia Handy assert that, as the United States has no jurisdiction over Behring Sea, the seizure was illegal. The briefs in the case and the argument followed the line of the argument of the Sayward case and were substantially the same, the government, in fact, merely giving a new title to its brief. Wm. G. Johnson of this city opened the case for the owner of the vessel and Solicitor General Taft spoke for the government. In the course of his argument, the Solicitor General referred to the fact that Mr. Choate yesterday made a point not in the brief of the Sayward counsel. The point was that even if it were true that the declaration of the executive on the matter of boundaries could alone bind the court, there had been no positive declaration by the executive until subsequent to the Sayward seizure, and that therefore, the seizure was illegal because it would be retroactive. The Solicitor General's answer today is that point was that the declaration of the President was analogous to the action of a court in construing law. Although the court's construction would not come until after the violation of the law, it would relate back to the time of the passage of the law and affect all intervening cases. In the same manner, the President's declaration on the question of territorial sovereignty would affect the Sayward and Sylvia Handy cases.

BIG CROP OF COIN.

Records Surpassed by Last Year's Issue from the Mint.

WASHINGTON, November 11.—Edward O. Leach, director of the mint in his annual report says the value of gold deposited at the mint and assay office during the last fiscal year was $59,625,687, against $49,228,823 in the preceding year. The deposits and purchase of silver aggregate 71,849,665 92 standard ounces of the coining value of 59,630,154, against $44,563,135 in the preceding year. The coinage executed at the mint was the largest in the history of this country, aggregating 119,547,877 pieces, valued at $63,611,159. The net loss of gold by export during the fiscal year was $67,946,768, while there was a net gain of silver amounting to $2,745,365. The mines of the United States yielded during the last year: Gold fine ounces, 1,588,880; commercial value, $32,845,000; silver fine ounces, 54,500,000; commercial value, $57,225,000.

The product of gold in the world during the last calendar year was $116,000,000, and of silver $134,886,000, commercial value.

Bath Concern Said To Be Absorbed.

NEW YORK, November 11.—It was announced in Wall street yesterday that the National Cordage Company, otherwise the Cordage Trust, had acquired the New Bedford Cordage Company and the Donnell Cordage Company of Bath, Me., and was negotiating for the control of the Suffolk Cordage Company. The New Bedford concern has been in business for sixty years, and the Bath company is also an old one. The Suffolk is a newer company, but is said to have the finest mills in New England. Its capital is $600,000, or at the rate of $1000 per spindle.

SIX HUNDRED COWS.

Their Milk Wanted for the New Waterville Creamery.

[Special to the Press.]

WATERVILLE, November 11.—Mr. Bradford, of the Turner Centre Creamery Company, was in the city today on business connected with the establishment of a creamery here. He met several of these interested in the plan at Dunn block this afternoon and explained the system of conducting the business. There is a very strong sentiment among the farmers favoring this proposed new industry, and it looks as though a factory would be in operation before long. The milk is taken at the farmer's door and a good price is paid for it. This company is doing a big business in this line in Maine, and regards Waterville as a very favorable location for a branch factory. The milk of 600 cows will be required to start upon, and it is believed that this will be pledged as soon as the farmers thoroughly understand the benefits derived from such a business. Mr. R. W. Dunn is much interested in the proposed factory, and is endeavoring to make the farmers take hold of it.

HIGH JINKS IN LINCOLN.

But Law Is Taking the Place Which Rum Held.

BANGOR, November 11.—Hotel Keeper Clay and Stetson, two Lincoln liquor dealers, were fined one hundred dollars and costs each, and were given sixty days in jail. This was before the Oldtown court. One dealer has fled and one Soucl and his wife will appear later.

An element existing in Lincoln, it will be remembered, had sufficient power and recklessness, last summer, to turn a pastor of the Congregationalist church from his boarding place because he preached temperance sermons. It pelted him with rotten eggs and stones while going home from church; it set the hotel dog upon him in the streets of the village, and this in the day time; it thrust a bottle of rum under his nose in the street and demanded that he drink. It also egged the Methodist minister on the street and threatened his life, yet no one interfered. Later it took an Indian girl by the name of Newell, filled her with liquor and left her, one evening, just as the people were coming out of church, half naked, in front of the door, with a blazing torch not far away to light the scene.

On another occasion, a mixture of whiskey and sweet wine was taken by a liquor dealer's son, to school. The schoolhouse has a belfry, and there in school hours, several scholars were found playing cards, one of the number stupefied by drink. These are the stories told, partly by well known lumbermen, partly by a persecuted clergyman, partly by a town official and partly by a general report.

The peculiar state of affairs in Lincoln, strange as it may seem, is due first to the influx of rough characters during the building of the Canadian Pacific Railway and second, to the fact that the order-loving element did not awake to the danger until too late.

VETERAN OF THE BIG HORN.

Death of Old Comanche Who Was in Custer's Last Fight.

KANSAS CITY, November 11.—Word has been received here of the death of Comanche, the most celebrated horse in the United States cavalry service, at Fort Riley, on last Thursday. He was 45 years of age, and the only living thing belonging to the United States service which escaped the massacre at the battle of Little Big Horn, where General Custer and his command were massacred. He was one of the original mount of the Seventh Cavalry, which regiment was organized in 1866, and had been in almost every battle with the Indian service. After the battle of Little Big Horn, he was found covered with wounds, riderless and saddleless, some distance from the scene of the massacre. He was taken charge of by Captain Rowlan and ever since at Fort Riley, where for 14 years he has not been subject to bridle, and has been in charge of the Seventh Cavalry. His death was due to old age. His skin will be stuffed and mounted and kept in the museum of the Kansas State University until the World's Fair at Chicago, where it will be taken for exhibition.

ALMY IS ABBOTT.

It is Said He Deliberately Broke His Injured Leg.

BOSTON, November 11.—A special to the Globe from Manchester, N. H., says the examination of Frank C. Almy, made by physicians, shows positively that he is George H. Abbott. The scars left by the wounds inflicted on Abbott were found. It is claimed by the officer who accompanied him to Woodsville that Almy deliberately broke his injured leg while on the journey. A guard was placed over Abbott tonight, to be kept night and day until his removal to Plymouth for trial next Tuesday.

MAINE.

Two Weddings in a Day.

[Special to the Press.]

ROCKLAND, November 11.—Two very pretty weddings occurred here today, the occasions beings rendered none the less happy by the down pour of rain. The first wedding took place at the Catholic church this morning, when James Savage and Miss Cora Brewer, both of Rockland, were united in marriage by Rev. Father Phelan. A wedding dinner was served at the residence of the groom's sister. There were very handsome gifts.

This evening, Esten W. Porter and Miss Frances Orbeston were united in marriage at the bride's residence, Rev. J. H. Parshley officiating. Both are well known and popular. Mr. Porter is in the employ of the Bodwell Granite Company. He is superintendent of the Baptist Sunday school.

A Blaze in Canton.

CANTON, November 11.—A small house, owned by Miss H. M. Glines, burned yesterday. There was no insurance. Mrs. Myers, one of the occupants, lost nearly all her things.

An Equine House Breaker.

GARDINER, November 11.—A horse belonging to Thomas A. Nolan, the stable keeper ran away this morning and dashed into the shoe store of Albert L. Stephenson, going through the door. The only damage done to the store was the demolishing of the door. The horse was considerably cut and the wagon badly broken.

Madison Mills Running.

MADISON, November 11.—A crew of men have been at work gravelling the dam across the river, and the water has risen sufficiently so that the mills are running again.

Bad Accident in Bowdoinham.

BOWDOINHAM, November 11.—E. P. Kendall of the firm of W. B. and E. P. Kendall, Bowdoinham, while at work in their blacksmith shop, Tuesday, was badly burned by a piece of iron, which he had prepared for welding.

Local Creditors Surprised.

LEWISTON, November 11.—T. A. Wyman of Boston, counsel for Jeremiah Williams of Boston, trustee in the mortgage known as the North National Bank mortgage, has taken possession of the New Auburn Spring Hotel. His action was unexpected by the local creditors, who are much interested in the move.

Pythian Sisters.

LEWISTON, November 11.—The annual meeting of the Grand Lodge of the Pythian Sisters was held here today. Eighteen new members were admitted. The following officers were elected:

P. C.—Mrs. F. C. Tarr, Lewiston.
G. C.—Mrs. E. G. Cole, Portland.
G. O. C.—Mrs. H. G. Libby, Cumberland Mills.

OVER WILD WATERS

Glimpses of Battered Vessels With Men in the Rigging.

Life Savers Lost In Trying to Save Seamen.

England's Rocky Shores Again Strewn with Wrecks.

LONDON, November 11.—Last night a heavy gale set in in the south of England and Ireland and grew to a hurricane during the night. At Sandgate, on the Channel, the Iron ship Benvenue of over 2000 tons burden, London for Sydney, N. S. W., was dashed ashore. The crew took to the rigging. The life savers abandondoned all hope of saving the crew after making three unsuccessful attempts. One sailor in the rigging attempted to reach the shore by swimming, but was drowned. Some of the crew, exhausted by their long exposure, dropped into the water and sank from sight. Troops were sent to aid the life savers along the Sandgate section of the coast in their efforts to render assistance to vessels. Several bodies were cast upon the beach at Sandgate.

The storm extended northward and now rages with great fury from Wick, Scotland, to the Scilly Islands in the English channel. A telegram from the islands states that a schooner was wrecked there, the crew being saved.

A vessel named the Paramount sunk off Lowestoft, Suffolk, and all hands on board except two sailors, were drowned.

The bark Amor stranded near St. Leonardo, Sussex. The crew were lashed to the rigging, and at last accounts, were not rescued.

In London the storm has done considerable damage.

The Norweglan brig Solertia, was wrecked at Studland, Dansel.

The fishing boat Star of the East, while entering Lowestoft, crashed against the north pier and was wrecked. Six of the crew were drowned. One man was rescued but soon died from exhaustion.

The British steamer Brazilian, London for New Orleans, proceeding down the stream, collided in succession with and damaged a barge, the brig Ploughman, and Her Majesty's training ship Arethusa.

A party of the life-saving crew of Hythe, while rescuing a shipwrecked crew, were swept from the boat and drowned.

A foreign bark went ashore at Dungeness, and the life-boat men started to the rescue. The life-boat capsized, and five of the crew were lost.

At Deal, a fishing boat capsized and two men were drowned.

Several vessels are ashore between Dungeness and Dover, and it is feared they will go to pieces and the crews perish.

The damage to fishing boats and other small craft employed in local coastwise trade is large. The damage to property at Folkestone and Deal is very great. The roofs of several houses were blown off, and the streets are strewn with slates and tiles. At Christ Church, the rivers Stour and Avon overflowed their banks, and the country near Christ Church is flooded and a part of the town inundated. The rivers in the Midland counties are rapidly rising, and it is feared a general repetition of the floods of a few weeks ago will follow. According to latest reports the gale is general throughout England.

Later—The life savers at Seabrook, with great difficulty, managed to rescue 27 of the officers and crew of the stranded ship Benvenue. The captain and four of the crew were drowned.

A BLIZZARD OUT WEST.

It Started With the Aid of a Cloudburst in Washington.

TACOMA, Wash., November 11.—There never have been worse storms in western Washington than those of Saturday and Sunday between the sound and the cascades. The worst damage was done near Weston, where a cloudburst occurred which swept everything before it. Between Weston and Tacoma numerous bridges were washed away. The storms extended even across the range. Telegraph wires between Portland and Wallula, on the Northern Pacific, are down. A landslide occurred at Orring. The Stuck valley is flooded.

St. Paul's Robe of White.

UNCLE SAM'S OPIUM.

Big Lot Seized and More To Be Gathered In.

NEW YORK, November 11.—The discovery of a wholesale system of opium smuggling across the Canadian border has considerably startled the custom house officials. In the custom house there is now lying the largest quantity of opium ever seized and there is still more to follow. Special Agent Cummings today said: "I can and Geo. P. Wescott, the other owners, both of whom were present, have stated that they are also favorably disposed to the project.

Mr. George P. Wescott said he had a lively interest in the matter and was ready to take any reasonable steps toward abating it. Mr. Wescott graphically described the condition of the sewage at the Grove street bridge. He hoped that some action would be taken at once since postponement would result in a continuance of the trouble another year. He said that three years ago $11,000 was appropriated and diverted to another source. The next year a proposal to appropriate the same sum was squelched on the plea of stopping a deal in favor of the Rochester railroad. He said that Mr. Conant and himself were perfectly willing to go in with the city in any steps they might decide upon.

Mr. Jordan explained the action of the tide upon the sewage near the foundation of the old mill on Green street.

Mr. Coombs called upon Hon. Charles F. Libby to repeat some of the testimony regarding the sewer, taken by the county commissioners when the Rochester extension land damage cases were under discussion. Mr. Libby said that he was satisfied that the sewer was so dangerous that in making up the list of appropriations they would put this improvement first of all. Laborers who worked on the railroad extension testified at the hearing that in simply working there a few hours they were made seriously ill. As this was true then, it is more true now, as the sewers that discharge into the creek are increasing in number and extent every day. He thought the aldermen should go to the outside limits of their constitutional rights, if it is necessary, in raising money to abate the nuisance. He thought that as things now are the creek is a serious menace to the prosperity of the city. Regarding the fact that the appropriations are nearly exhausted at the present time, Mr. Libby said that there is no question as to ways and means. A call for a voluntary loan from the citizens would be justified, and undoubtedly would be generously responded to. Mr. Libby grew more emphatic as he went on, saying that whatever means must be taken to raise the money to pay for it, this winter should not be allowed to pass without a beginning of the work. He said he thought that every citizen who understood the facts of the case would stand behind his representative in the board. The city cannot afford to wait for the fulfilment of the large scheme of improvement for Back Cove.

Mr. Libby explained the growth of the sewage system from the almshouse drain built by Joel Merrill, years ago to the festering sink of iniquity today, and discussed at length general schemes for improvement. He stated that when the Deering heirs gave the park to the city the filling of the flats was a part consideration of the gift. The scheme was perhaps costly, but the needed work—raising the flats above high-water mark, with gravel brought in by a railroad train—is of nominal cost, and a contract should be made for its accomplishment.

CAUSES DEATH.

Citizens Talk Plainly About the Deering Point Nuisance.

It Is Held Responsible for Many Cases of Sickness.

Aldermen Recommend Prompt Action By Their Successors.

There was a special meeting of the Board of Mayor and Aldermen at 7 30 last evening for the purpose of giving a hearing to petitioners for abatement of the "Mill Creek" nuisance alleged to be responsible for the present outbreak of diphtheria and typhoid fever in the city and Deering Point.

There were present Aldermen Birnie, Gallagher, Clark, McClutchy, Conant, Stephenson. Before proceeding to the hearing the following jurors were drawn for the December term of the United States District Court. Grand jurors W. H. Willard and John Gunn; petit jurors, George H. Horne, Charles P. Ilisley.

In the absence of the Mayor and Mr. Lewis, chairman of the board, Alderman McClutchy was chosen chairman pro tempore.

The petitions for filling the flats within the limits of Deering Park, signed by Dr. F. H. Gerrish and twenty-two other physicians, and John F. Rand and ninety-eight others were read by the city clerk.

Mr. Ardon W. Coombs appeared for the petitioners. Mr. Coombs said that these petitions were not those signed by men who had not read the contents of them, but by residents in the immediate vicinity of the contaminated district, and after full investigation of the matter in issue. They were fully aware of the danger now existing and fully willing to bear their share of the expense of improvements.

Mr. Coombs then spoke at length upon the growth of the Oaks as a public park and described the nuisance existing on the northerly side, where the open sewer of Mill Creek is allowed to discharge its offensive matter on the land. The city is largely the author of the nuisance on its own property as the most of the offensive matter comes from public buildings at the West End. Mr. Coombs said that he was willing to stake his reputation as an ex-county attorney, that the city is indictable for negligence in allowing the nuisance, which he thought was self-evident to remain.

The remedy he suggested was to cut off the tide water, box up the sewer and fill the flats. The expense of all this might be fifty cents on every thousand dollars of valuation if the work is contemplated to be finished in one year. This, he thought, was not necessary, as arrangements could be made with responsible persons to continue the work from year to year. He thought that considering the amount of filling necessary it was even impracticable to undertake the entire work in a year.

Dr. F. H. Gerrish was called upon for some testimony. He reviewed the work that he had done in regard to Mill creek, commencing in 1877 and continuing at frequent intervals to the present time. Although the area of the pond now is less than it was in 1879 the amount of sewage is much greater. He though that the health of people living on the banks of the creek would indicate the deadly nature of the mass of sewage. Many cases of typhoid fever exist at Deering Point. While it could not be said absolutely that the water caused the disease, yet the inference of cause and effect would readily be drawn. Beside the matter of health there are business matters that ought to weigh with the city government. There must be sewers there at some time and it would cost less to build them now, than to wait for a judgment gained in the courts, in favor of the town of Deering, to which suit he thought the city extremely liable and fully indictable.

In closing Dr. Gerrish reminded the board that he had heard of an appropriation for this very matter, but which was diverted to some other purpose. He thought this should be looked up and an equal amount of money provided for at the present.

Mr. E. C. Jordan was next called upon. He thought it was plainly patent to every one that nuisance and fever were cause and effect and that the nuisance should be abated. No matter who owns the area of the pond, the city has evidently created the nuisance and should abate it. Part of the park, nearly three acres in fact, belongs in Deering, "and," said Mr. Jordan, "it has been a surprise to me that the city has not been indicted before this for creating the nuisance." Regarding the amount to fill, Mr. Jordan thought that there was much less than Mr. Coombs said, 30,000 yards, much of it having been filled already by the Rochester railroad. He thought that there were persons present who were ready to make the city a good offer for the work. Mr. Jordan said that the ownership of the flats was limited to three parties, all of which are united in wishing to abate the nuisance.

Mr. Coombs said that he knew that there were no ownerships of property in the vicinity of the flats that will in any way interfere with the work of abating the nuisance. Mr. Henry Deering is perfectly willing to join, and Messrs. Wm. H. Conant and Geo. P. Wescott, the other owners, both of whom were present, have stated that they are also favorably disposed to the project.

Mr. George P. Wescott said he had a lively interest in the matter and was ready to take any reasonable steps toward abating it. Mr. Wescott graphically described the condition of the sewage at the Grove street bridge. He hoped that some action would be taken at once since postponement would result in a continuance of the trouble another year. Referring to Secretary Rusk's recommendation for the imposition of a duty on hides, the Boston Advertiser says:

In making this recommendation, however, the secretary of agriculture seems to forget that the condition of the Argentine republic and of Uruguay is such that at present no reciprocal concessions of that nature can be made by those countries.

It appears subsequently that the "condition" noted by the Advertiser is the financial stress in the Argentine Republic, due to the Baring failure. It is difficult to see, however, how the President derives from the reciprocity clause of the McKinley law any power to take into account this condition of the Argentine Republic. The law says distinctly, that "on and after the first day of January eighteen hundred and ninety-two, whenever, and so often as the President shall be satisfied that the government of any country producing and exporting sugars, molasses, coffee, tea and hides, raw and uncured, or any of such articles, imposes duties or other exactions upon the agricultural or other products of the United States, which in view of the free introduction of such sugar, molasses, coffee, tea and hides into the United States he may deem to be reciprocally unequal and unreasonable, he shall have the power and it shall be his duty to suspend, by proclamation to that effect, the provisions of this act relating to the free introduction of such sugar, molasses, coffee, tea and hides, the production of such country, for such time as he shall deem just, and in such case and during such suspension duties shall be levied, collected and paid upon sugar, molasses, coffee, tea and hides, the product of or exported from such designated country." The duty of the President under the clause is clear enough. It is first to determine whether the nations to which we have made concessions have made us equal concessions, and if they have not to reimpose the duty on their products which are now admitted free. Whether they have had a good excuse or not for not doing so he is not authorized to consider or take into account. When the fact that they have not done so is clear, then it becomes his duty to restore the tariff. The Argentine Republic has made no concession to our products, and therefore it appears to be the duty of the President to impose a tariff on hides coming from that country.

The Behring Seal Controversy.

The present proceedings before the United States Supreme Court in regard to the sealing vessels seized in Behring Sea, may be termed merely a side show to the great diplomatic question involved. Perhaps the most important thing brought out is the announcement that the diplomatic question is about to go to arbitration. Thus after a great amount of delay that has been disastrous to the American sealing interests, and considerable diplomatic wrangling that has been productive of nothing but long letters, the circle has been completed and the matter is again in much the position it was in when Mr. Bayard left the State Department. The importance of the diplomatic question involved and the length of time this and similar controversies relating to Behring Sea have been pending, suggest a fuller explanation, such as appeared in these columns some time ago, of the question than is given in the despatches. In the seventy years of diplomatic controversy over Russian rights in Behring Sea and on the northwest coast of America, the seal has had no prominence until the last five years. It is only since the United States has possessed the rookeries of St. Paul and St. George, that they have become so valuable as to lead to international contentions; and it is only since the Canadian settlements have grown up in British Columbia that there have been mariners so situate as to organize expeditions for "pelagic sealing" or the capture of seals in the water instead of on their breeding grounds. It is the seal, now wearing a coat of increased value, that is causing all this disturbance of the relations of friendly nations. Gradually the "pelagic sealers" of British Columbia have extended their operations further northward, and in 1886 we find an extensive business carried on by them in Behring Sea. Then were the United States revenue cutters instructed to seize these sealers irrespective of their distance from land. Several schooners were seized, among them the W. P. Sayward, which was libelled in the United States Court at Sitka, and on account of which the appeal is now pending in the United States Supreme Court. to quash the proceedings of the Sitka Court The English government protested against the seizures, and Mr. Bayard agreed that no more seizures should be made pending negotiations for a settlement of the difficulty which should guarantee the preservation of the supply of seals. Mr. Bayard did not in the negotiations contend that the United States had derived from Russia the right asserted by that country in 1821 of excluding foreign vessels to a distance of 100 miles from the coasts. He merely represented to England that the fur seal industry was a valuable business which gave employment to many hunters in Alaska and 10,000 laboring men and women in London who were engaged in dressing the skins. Therefore he thought that England and other interested powers should together arrange an equitable method of preserving the seals on the seas from the "pelagic sealers." The right of the United States to protect its own rookeries was not in any way compromised by this proposition, which related wholly to the protection of seals in the seas beyond the three mile limit where, by international law, the high seas begin. Lord Salisbury received Mr. Bayard's proposition favorably, and in February, 1888, our Minister to England wrote Mr. Bayard as follows:

Lord Salisbury assents to your prodosition to establish, by mutual arrangement between the governments interested, a close time for fur seals, between April 15th and November 1st, and between 160 degrees of longitude east in the Behring sea. He will also join the United States government in any preventive measures it may be thought best to adopt, by orders issued to the naval vessels in that region of the respective governments.

Meanwhile Mr. Bayard went ahead and issued invitations to Russia and other powers that might be interested. But Canada made some objections to the proposed form of settlement which caused Lord Salisbury to delay and hesitate. The negotiations were in this condition when the result of our presidential election put another President into the White House and another Secretary into the State Department.

Between Mr. Blaine and Lord Salisbury there had not been for some time the best of feeling. In the Garfield administration Mr. Blaine had indulged in a tilt with the British foreign office which had not been relished by leading Englishmen; and still later Mr. Blaine, in his warm espousal of the cause of the Irish agitators, had in the Portland speech denounced the acts of Lord Salisbury's government in Ireland as brutal and oppressive. Even diplomatists have human passions, although it is their business to conceal them, and when the Behring Sea difficulty pressed to the front again the two gentlemen squared off for a friendly settlement in a way not wholly suggestive of concord. It began with a communication from the English stating that it had been reported that United States revenue cutters were seizing British sealers on Behring Sea. The English wished to know if this was so, and added that if it was so they hoped the United States would promptly modify the instructions to the revenue cutters. This was in August, 1889. Mr. Blaine sent back a polite, but evasive reply. Finally in September he told the English representatives that the United States government could not give such assurance; and in January, 1890, he sent to Lord Salisbury through Sir Julian Pauncefote a letter defending the right of the United States cutters to seize the Canadian sealers on the waters of Behring Sea. Thus began the negotiations. Meanwhile, and at the time they were proceeding, the English government continued asking for assurances that pending the negotiations no Canadian vessels should be seized. This assurance was not given, and on the 14th of June, 1890, Sir Julian Pauncefote formally transmitted to Mr. Blaine the protest of his government, which, after reciting the British grievance, declared "that Her Brittanic Majesty's government must hold the government of the United States responsible for the consequences that may ensue from acts which are contrary to the established principles of international law." The English said in effect, "You will send your cutters after our sealers at your peril." In the ridiculously feeble condition of the United States navy, such language as this is troublesome for a Secretary of State. Mr. Blaine did not signify formally to the British Minister what he would do about this protest; but no seizures have been made since in Behring Sea, and there have been no further requests from the English for assurances as to the conduct of our cutters.

The letter writing of the two diplomatists, which continued scarcely interrupted by this incident, was chiefly a fencing for the benefit of spectators in both countries. Mr. Blaine defended the seizures, resting the justification on these grounds:

I. That the killing of seals on the open seas is contra bonos mores. That is, that it involves a wasteful destruction of seal life prejudicial to the property which the United States holds in the rookeries of St. George and St. Paul. In support of this, Mr. Blaine calls attention to the fact that all other seal fisheries, except those in Behring Sea, have been almost totally destroyed. Therefore, he argues that the United States has a right to prevent sealing, not only on the land and within the three-mile limit, but also on the seas beyond.

II. That the United States derived from Russia the right to control the waters of Behring Sea to a distance of 100 miles from the coasts; that Russia had claimed this right by the ukase of 1821, and that England had admitted it; and that the right was transferred, unimpaired, to the United States by the treaty of 1867. This is not a claim that Behring Sea is a mare clausum, which Mr. Blaine disavows.

In reply, Lord Salisbury contended:

I. That the killing of seals in the open seas is not contra bonos mores, or immoral, because seals are wild animals and are not the property of the United States or anyone else until they are caught. Further, Lord Salisbury claims that sealing in the open seas is not so destructive as Mr. Blaine asserts; and that the great destruction of seal life in other places has not been on the water but on the rookeries. Upon this question of the destruction of seal life both Mr. Blaine and Lord Salisbury bring a large amount of conflicting testimony, of United States treasury agents, scientists, Canadian agents and others.

But even supposing that the pursuit of seals on the high seas is contra bonos mores Lord Salisbury holds that even then the seizure on the high seas of the vessels of a friendly nation would not be justified. In support of this he cites President Tyler, who said in a message to Congress in 1843, that with the exception of cases of piracy, "no nation has, in time of peace, any authority to detain the ships of another upon the high seas, on any pretext whatever, outside the territorial jurisdiction." Lord Salisbury points out that even in the case of the slave trade, a practice much worse than catching seals, the right of arresting the vessel of another country is exercised only by special international agreement.

II. In reply to Mr. Blaine's second point, Lord Salisbury holds that both the United States and England refused to admit the claims to jurisdiction over the high seas made in the Russian ukase of 1821, that Russia did not adhere to those claims, and therefore that the jurisdiction of the waters of Behring Sea to a distance of 100 miles from the coast, was not part of the rights conveyed to the United States by the cession of Alaska.

In support of his contention Lord Salisbury cites protests made by Mr. Adams, the American secretary of state; of Lord Londonderry, the Duke of Wellington and other English officials; and the treaties of 1824 wherein Russia abandonded on "the northwest coast of America" among other claims that of the right of dominion over the seas to a distance of 100 miles from the coasts. He also cites a speech of Charles Sumner in the Senate upon the purchase of Alaska, wherein Mr. Sumner, speaking of the pursuit of whales near the Aleutian Islands, said: "No sea is now mare clausum; all of these may be pursued by a ship under any flag, except directly on the coast or within its territorial limit."

In returning to the discussion Mr. Blaine has not, so far as the correspondence already published shows returned to the contra bonos mores argument; but he devotes himself exclusively to the argument that the United States have derived from Russia jurisdiction over Behring Sea to a distance of 100 miles from the coast. To sustain this Mr. Blaine sets up the contention that the phrases "northwest coast of America" and "northwest coast" used by the negotiators of the treaties of 1824 were understood by them to mean only a part of the northwest coast of America, that is, only so much as lies south of the Alaskan peninsular and that from the failure to mention Behring sea specifically it follows, he claims, that it was understood by the negotiators of 1824 that Russia retained the right to dominion over the waters of the sea to a distance of one hundred miles from the shores. Upon this point the amount of diplomatic correspondence is very large.

While this correspondence reaches no conclusion there have been made, in the course of it, certain offers of arbitration, from which a settlement now seems likely to result. The favorable offer which Lord Salisbury made to Mr. Bayard in regard to close time has not been repeated to Mr. Blaine. On the other hand, the English have offered to arbitrate. Last April they proposed a mixed commission to determine what steps might be necessary to prevent the extermination of the seals by "pelagic sealing." Again Lord Salisbury sent this offer:

Her Majesty's government have no desire whatever to refuse to the United States any jurisdiction in Behring Sea which was conceded by Great Britain to Russia, and which properly accrues to the present possessors of Alaska in virtue of treaties of the law of nations; and that, if the United States government, after examination of the evidence and arguments which I have produced, still differ from them as to the legality of the recent captures in that year they are ready to agree that the question, with the issues that depend upon it, should be preferred to impartial arbitration.

This offer of arbitration Mr. Blaine refused. But later in his letter of last December he accepted conditionally, stipulating as to certain details of the abitration. This arbitration is now practically arranged, it is announced, and the long case is soon to be settled.

NEW PUBLICATIONS

Venetian Life. By William Dean Howells. With illustrations from original water colors. This is one of the most delightful of Mr. Howells's many delightful books, and a choice subject for illustration. To illustrate it for a holiday edition the arrangement was made to procure from a number of water color artists familiar with Venice, sketches of the most salient features of scene and color and to reproduce them as perfectly as possible. The names of Childe Hassam, F. Hopkinson Smith, Mrs. Rhoda Holmes Nichols, and Ross Turner, all of whom have lived in Venice, some of them many years, give sufficient assurance of the artistic skill brought to the illustration of this work. The spirit of the originals, as well as their form and color, are admirably brought out in the illustrations. Daybreak on the Lagoon, Woodboats and Dogana, by Ross Turner, Feeding the Pigeons in the Piazza, "Amphibious Boys," and The Venetian People, by Rooda Holmes Nichols, A Corner of the Rialto, by F. Hopkinson Smith, are exquisite pieces of color. Each chapter has a decorative head-piece, and rubricated initials have been designed expressly for these volumes. The paper on which the book is printed is of fine quality, and the ivory-white and gold binding, arranged by Mrs. Henry Whitman, makes a choice and appropriate covering for the beautiful contents. These very interesting and attractive volumes will make a most charming gift book for the Holidays and all other days. (Boston and New York: Houghton, Mifflin & Co.; Portland: Loring, Short & Harmon.)

The Amber Gods and Other Stories. By Harriet Prescott Spofford. (New York: United States Book Company, successors to John W. Lovell Co.) The day of short stories is at hand, and French, English and American authors are venturing in this direction with more or less success. The palm is generally conceded, however, to American writers, and among these Mrs. Harriet Prescott Spofford holds an unique place. Long ago Mrs. Spofford—then Miss Prescott—sent to the Atlantic Monthly her story entitled In a Cellar—the first that she had ever published. It was received by the reading public with enthusiasm, and in 1863 was incorporated into a volume entitled The Amber Gods and Other Stories, a remarkable collection of brilliant and clever sketches, which are more than mere stories. At the present moment, nearly thirty years later, a new edition of Mrs. Spofford's book has been issued, and we believe it will make a more distinct impression and be more fully appreciated than at its first appearance.

In reviewing this volume it would be impossible to speak of the author's style, so varied, so utterly unlike are the stories. That with which the book opens, and which gives it its title, The Amber Gods, is riotously imaginative, and full of fire and perfume and sensuous fancy; yet through it all runs a vein of practical common sense which shows that the author has her subject well in hand; that she knows what she is doing and never goes beyond her artistic perception, which is keen and critical. Sensuous, we say, but not sensual; for it is all pure and sweet, though so seemingly loose a vein is given to writer's fancy. The strong sense and healthful vigor of mind keep her from going astray, and the result is delightful.

In a Cellar, the second story in the volume is as clever and clear cut as one of Gaboreau's. Indeed it was at first declined by the editor of the Atlantic with the comment "We do not publish translations,"—which this most surely is not,—and was afterward accepted with effusion. Circumstances, is strong and terrible, and founded on a New England legend of a dreadful creature called the Indian Devil. In Desert Sands again we find the purely imaginative element predominating, tempered by pathos and tenderness. Midsummer and May, is brilliant and clever, while not so absolutely individual and unique, as the others. While Knitting Sale Socks is a pretty country idyl, simple, natural and charming. The South Breaker is a delightful story, fitted to win all hearts. The wonderful versatility displayed in this collection is not its least remarkable feature. Fun, pathos, tragedy, follow each other, each with a distinct flavor of the author's brilliant mind, vivid imagination, and a keen emotional nature. A more delightful collection of stories is not to be found today, and anybody who takes up the book for the first time will find it enchanting. The many who have known it in its earlier days will come to it again with as keen zest as when they turned its pages for the first time.

In the wars and diplomacy of the aborigines who inhabited the Northern and Eastern portion of this continent when the white men began to settle and conquer there was one great dividing line between those Indians who were called Algonquins and the Iroquois. The latter lived in the great strategic centre of this continent, middle New York, whence there was easy access by waterways and easy trails to nearly the whole of the United States and Canada lying east of the Rockies. This position, added to the indomitable bravery and great abilities of the Iroquois, or six nations, as their confederation was called made them the master Indians of the east. Their very name was a terror to the Algonquin hunter, whether he pitched his camp on the Penobscot, the Illinois, or north of the St. Lawrence. When Champlain, Montcalm, Father Rasle and the other French warriors and priests gained the friendship and aid of the Algoquin savages they failed to get the six nations. In the long and cruel but romantic contest between France and England for the Dominion of North America the six nations were the allies of the English, and of untold importance. Mohawk warriors fought beside Massachusetts soldiers in defending the settlements of Maine, they helped take Crown Point from the French, they were the invaluable fighters and scouts with whom the English colonists were able to meet the French and their savage allies. The man who did most to keep these Iroquois allies true to the English cause, who neutralized the intrigues of French priests and traders, was Sir William Johnson, the Lord of Johnson manor in the valley of the Mohawk, one of the ablest diplomatists, soldiers and statesmen that this continent has produced. He came to America a poor boy, and settled on the remote frontier where his associates were Indians and hunters. But over those Indians and hunters he gained such influence and command that he was able to stand as one of the chief bulwarks of England in America against the splendid schemes of the House of Bourbon. William Elliot Griffis has told the story of the Life of Sir William Johnson in one of the books of the Makers of America Series. The work has been done with due regard to the general history of the times as well as the personal history of the subject, and is a valuable and interesting contribution to American History. $20,000 City of Colorado Springs, Colo.

6 Per Cent Bridge and Viaduct Bonds.

Redeemable after August 1, 1901. Payable August 1, 1906. Principal and Semi-annual interest payable in New York in Gold Coin.

Assessed Valuation	$4,926,930
Total Debt $564,000
Water Debt 477,000
Net Debt	87,000
Population	11,410

The Bonds are authorized by popular vote, the result being almost unanimous in favor of the loan.

In addition to the tax levied upon the entire property of the City for the payment of interest, after ten years an additional tax is levied sufficient to retire $6,000 of the bonds each year. The average life of the bonds should therefore be about 12½ years.

The Constitution of Colorado limits the indebtedness of the City exclusive of Water Debt, to 3 per cent of the assessed valuation.

The official report of March 31st, 1891, values the Water Works at $640,000, and the net revenue received from the Water Works (about $36,000) is more than sufficient to pay the interest on the entire bonded debt.

A SUPERB STORM SHIELD.

Warranted All-Wool and Snow and Water Proof.

Price $12.

Copyright secured. Beware of Shoddy imitations.

STANDARD CLOTHING CO., 255 Middle Street. PORTLAND, - - MAINE.

The warmest, most durable and best Ulster ever made for the money.

We are receiving orders for it every day from friends of those who purchased last year, which shows what they think of it.

STANDARD CLOTHING CO., 255 Middle Street, PORTLAND, - - MAINE.

We have sent this long, warm, storm proof Ulster into every state and territory, and not one word of complaint has been made. On the contrary, hundreds of willing testimonials have been sent us commending its great merit.

Out of town customers can order by sending breast measure only. Hundreds have done so without one being returned.

STANDARD CLOTHIMG CO., 255 Middle Street, PORTLAND - - MAINE.

534 Broadway, South Boston, Jan. 8, '91.

STANDARD CLOTHING Co.

Gentlemen: You ask how I like my Frieze Ulster? It is simply immense. I have proven that it is impervious to wind, and have but little doubt that it will prove the same to water. Take it all in all, it is the MOST coat for the money that I have found, and I have bought coats all along the country, from Bangor to San Francisco.

Very truly yours, Dr. J. H. SHERMAN.

STANDARD CLOTHING CO., 255 Middle Street, PORTLAND, - - MAINE.

Vincennes, Ind., Dec. 20, '90.

STANDARD CLOTHING CO.

Gentlemen: The Ulsters that I ordered have arrived, and are very satisfactory.

Please send seven (7) more at once, C. O. D. I am a farmer, and want them for my men, to whom I intend them as Christmas present.

Yours, &c., W. H. BREVOORT.

STANDARD CLOTHING CO., 255 Middle Street, PORTLAND, - - MAINE.

Pride's Livery Stable, Chelsea, Sept. 1, '91.

Standard Clothing Co.,

Gentlemen: In answer to your inquiry, how I like the King of Friese Ulster, I will just say this. For driving in rough, stormy weather, and for any purpose requiring strength and durability, it is the best coat, for the money, that I ever owned. You can say from me also that it is snow and water proof.

Yours truly, J. M. PRIDE,

STANDARD CLOTHING CO., 255 Middle Street. PORTLAND, - - MAINE.

Stoughton, Mas., Sept. 1, '91.

Standard Clothing Co.,

Gentlemen: I wore the King of Frieze Ulster all last winter, in all weathers, through the heaviest storms of rain and snow, and it proved a perfect storm shield. For driving and "roughing it" it certainly is the best garment that I ever saw, and I will add that it has been worth double the price to me.

Respectfully, M. M. UPHAM.

STANDARD CLOTHING CO., 255 Middle Street. PORTLAND, - - MAINE.

WIT AND WISDOM.

Mr. Small's Helpmate.

Guest (at the party)—Did you notice that Mr. Small's collar and cuffs were shockingly untidy, his necktie all out of shape and the back of his coat all covered with lint and ravellings?

Ditto—Yes. By the way, who was the lady that corrected him so sharply when he made that little mistake in his Greek quotation?

"That was his wife."—Chicago Tribune.

All infections of the blood are removed by Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Sold by all druggists.

Polly—So you are really and truly engaged—how did it come about?

Patsy—Well, papa said he didn't care, mamma said she didn't care, Jack said he didn't care, and I'm sure I didn't care, so we became engaged.—Puck.

I suffered from acute inflammation in my nose and head—for a week at a time I could not see. I used Ely's Cream Balm and in a few days I was cured. It is wonderful how quick it helped me.—Mrs. Georgie S. Judson, Hartford, Conn.

November All Right.

Mrs. Topflat (shivering)—November! Ugh! What a horrible month!

Mr. Topflat (employed downtown)—Horrible month? Great Scott, Clara, what are you talking about? It's got five pay days.—Chicago Tribune.

For the cure of colds, coughs and lung difficulties, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is unequaled.

A Financial Manager.

Mrs. Peterby is a woman with a head for business.

"Just see here. I have bought a beautiful rocking chair at auction, worth three dollars and I only paid two dollars for it; so you see I have one dollar clear profit. Don't tell me after this that women have no business sense.

"Do you need that rocking chair?" asked Mr. Peterby.

"No."

"Then what did you buy it for?"

"To save money, of course. How could I have saved that dollar if I hadn't bought it, stupid?"—Texas Siftings.

For three weeks I was suffering from a severe cold in my head, accompanied by a pain in the temples. Ely's Cream Balm was recommended to me. After only six applications of the Balm every trace of my cold was removed. —Henry C. Clark, New York appraiser's Office

U. S. DISTRICT COURT.

BEFORE JUDGE WEBB.

WEDNESDAY.—The bark Kate, owing to a disagreement between the owners as to what trade she should be employed in, was bonded last July, the bonds to expire December 1st. On November 7th she arrived in this port with a cargo of plaster, bound from Nova Scotia south. The majority of her owners voted to have her bond cancelled, but the minority objected on the ground that the bark was under charter and it would not be a proper delivery. Judge Webb held that the bonds could not be cancelled with the cargo aboard the vessel.

George E. Bird for majority.
Benjamin Thompson for minority.

SUPERIOR COURT.

BEFORE JUDGE BONNEY.

WEDNESDAY.—Hattie L. Hodge, complainant, vs. Herbert T. P. Sawyer. Bastardy complaint. The girl is a resident of New Hampshire and worked at North Yarmouth in the defendant's father's family. After the trouble occurred she went to her home in New Hampshire, where the baby was born. The defendant offered no testimony to contradict the statements of the complainant, but contended as matter of law that our statutes give the court no jurisdiction over a case where the mother is not a resident and the child is born out of the state. The court overruled this contention and the jury returned a verdict of guilty. The case goes to the law court on exceptions.

Clarence Hale for plff. M. P. Frank for deft.

MUNICIPAL COURT.

BEFORE JUDGE GOULD.

WEDNESDAY.—Margaret Connell and Michael J. Ward. Intoxication. Each fined $3 and costs.

The harbor was well filled with vessels yesterday. Boarding Officer Bradley, of the barge office, said that there were 25 or 30 vessels from St. John, N. B., on their way to Western ports. The sea was running heavy outside and vessels were putting in here for a harbor.

The men on the Maine Central steamer, City of Richmond, have a dog friend named Dan, that lives in Millbridge and visits the steamer whenever she is in port, never failing to get a bone from the cook's galley. Not long ago Dan stole away and made a trip by land 20 miles to his former home in Jonesport.

A week or two ago the fireman at the pail factory at Duck Pond saw in the stream that passes close to the boiler house a large trout sunning itself in the shallow water, which was only six or eight inches deep and full of saw-dust. He got a gun and fired at the fish, which was stunned by the shock and secured.

PERSONAL.

Hon. W. W. Thomas is still confined to the house with his attack of pneumonia.

Rev. Dr. Hill, pastor of the First Parish church, who is in Waltham, is very seriously ill.

The Williston Meetings.

The Bible reading by Mr. Bliss yesterday afternoon was largely attended. He took for his subject, "Walking with God." His exposition of Scripture was remarkably stimulating and hopeful. Mr. Bliss commands the confidence and sympathy of his hearers by his manly, unassuming, dignified bearing and earnest and devoted spirit. He grows upon an audience the longer they hear him. He never wanders from the direct application of Scripture truth,

The evening theme, "No Shame in the Gospel," was a powerful presentation of truth. Mr. Clark, who conducts the singing, was formerly a singer in one of the leading churches of Boston. He is a most stimulating and successful leader. These meetings, with the exception of Saturday, are held every afternoon and evening at 3 00 and 7.30 p. m.

Boston & Maine and Central Massachusetts.

The Central Massachusetts directors have re-elected the old officials. The directors have also decided to petition the legislature for authority to issue additional bonds. The old issue of $2,000,000 5 per cent are in the treasury of the Boston & Lowell, that company having issued $2,000,000 of 4 per cents for funds that were utilized in completing the road. The new bonds will be used to reimburse the Boston & Maine for expenses incurred upon the road and for further improvements. It is quite probable that the terms of the present lease will be modified in some particulars.

Republican City Committee.

At a meeting of the Republican City Committee the resignation of Mr. A. F. Gerrish as a member from Ward 5 was received and accepted, and Mr. Wilford G. Chapman was elected to fill the vacancy. Mr. John M. Peck was elected to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. Sidney W. Thaxter, who has moved from the ward.

Eclipse of the Moon.

The eclipse of the moon next Sunday evening will be total and visible here, the total phase beginning just after sunset. If fair it will be the most interesting celestial event of the year, and will undoubtedly be observed with unusual interest throughout the entire country. The moon will enter the penumbra at 4 52 and leave at 10.19 p. m.

Throws Up the Contract.

Mr. Tuttle, who was awarded the contract the other day to build the isolation hospital for $1845, has thrown up the contract on the ground that he made a miscalculation and cannot do the work at the contract price. The next lowest bidder is A. D. Smith, at $2150. Whether Mr. Smith accepts remains to be seen.

Steam Tonnage in Inland Waters.

In the telegraphic summary of the report of the state steamboat inspectors, wrong punctuation made the the total steam tonnage on the inland waters of the state 172,440, when it should have been 1724 40. It was also stated that there were 10 persons on the Wawa when she burned on Richardson Lake. There were, in fact, none.

WHITE ROBED SINGERS.

The Festival of Vested Choirs at St. Luke's Cathedral.

The much anticipated Festival of the Vested Choirs of the Diocese of Maine, took place at St. Luke's Cathedral last evening, and despite the heavy rain, was attended by an immense congregation.

It was a grand success. The choruses were splendidly rendered, phenomenally so, remembering that several of the choirs were but recently organized, and that only one rehearsal of the combined choir was had. The music was of high order and and was rendered in a manner which would do credit to an organization of trained voices who were in the habit of singing together constantly. The choir entered the church from the chapel, and the procession presented a most imposing appearance. First came St. Luke's choir, Gardiner choir, Lewiston choir, Bath choir, Brunswick choir and Waterville choir, followed by the Bishop, Canon Sills and several visiting clergy. Each choir carried its banner. St. Luke's choir took their seats inside the chancel rail and the visiting choirs took their places on a raised platform just outside the chancel. "Forward, be Our Watch Word," was the processional hymn, and was rendered in excellent time and tune. Mr. W. H. Carter, the organist of the Cathedral, conducted and Mr. Harvey Murray played the organ.

Following the processional came the vesicles of special psalms, sung to English chants by MacFarren, Woodward and Humphreys. Then followed Tour's Magnificat, a difficult composition, which was finely sung. The Nunc Dimittis of the same setting followed. The first anthem of the evening was Stainer's "What are these that are arrayed in white robes?" a splendid thing and spendidly given. Barnby's beautiful hymn, "For all the Saints" never sounded more sweetly than last evening.

Bishop Neely delivered a short address appropriate to the occasion, in which he dwelt on the subject of the choral service, which the Bishop described when well given, as the grandest, most spiritual service in the world.

"Holy offerings, rich and rare," a sweet little hymn, was sung with much taste during the offertory. Then followed the gem of the evening, Banby's anthem, "O Lord, how Manifold are Thy Works." The harmony of this anthem is simply grand, and the rendering Mr. Carter's choir gave it was almost faultless. The attack was excellent, the time perfect, and the tone and volume of tone very fine. This anthem was by all odds the best work of the evening. "Saviour, Blessed Saviour," was the recessional, and made a pretty close to the evening's service.

It is no exaggeration to say that the whole service was as fine a service as ever was rendered in the State of Maine. As we said before, when the short time for drill is considered the result was simply wonderful. Mr. Carter should receive the warmest congratulations and is entitled to the greatest credit for the character of the music rendered and for demonstrating to Maine people what boy choirs can do, and that there is no sweeter or more worshipful music on earth than the boy choir. Mr. Murray accompanied the difficult service faultlessly, and that, too, on a strange organ, and the Episcopal service is a study in itself to any organist. There are but a few organists in this country who could have excelled Mr. Murray's work under similar circumstances.

Lack of space forbids a more extended notice of the beautiful service. Portland people will look forward with great interest to the second annual festival of the Vested Choirs of Maine.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

MEN AND WOMEN.

Charles Frohman's company will, this evening, present for the first time here the great New York success, "Men and Women." The authors, DeMille and Belasco, the most prominent playwrights in America, are also responsible for such charming plays as "The Wife," "Lord Chumley," "The Charity Ball," and others. Charles Frohman's company of players in "Men and Women," says a well known Chicago writer, has unquestionably made as great a success as has ever been achieved by any stock company since the days of the old Union Square Theatre company.

MIDNIGHT ALARM.

Friday and Saturday, the thrilling drama, "The Midnight Alarm," will be played at Portland Theatre. As given this season, the play is greatly improved by Leander Richardson's revision, and its manager has spared no expense in carrying out the elaborate scene plot. Among the best effects may be mentioned the East River docks, the peculiar "living clock," railroad draw-bridge at Shark Run, the flight of the fast express, No. 6 engine house in New York, and the run of the steamer in the midst of a fierce storm.

AUSTRIAN JUVENILE BAND.

Saturday, the celebrated Austrian Juvenile Band, with Miss Glover, soprano vocalist, will appear at the matinee and Stockbridge entertainment in the evening. Good seats can be secured at Stockbridge's now.

THE STOCK BROKER.

Such was the title of a very "rocky" show that appeared in Portland Theatre last night. It is composed of a few ordinary variety artists, and it is not remarkable that there was no advance paper. There were two songs fairly well sung, and that about covers the bill.

THANKSGIVING PANTOMIME.

During the Thanksgiving holiday in Boston, the theatrical event most in keeping with such a time will, no doubt, be the offering of John Stetson, manager of the Globe Theatre. It will be a fairy pantomime, with all the wonderful transformations, mechanical illusions, stage tricks, acrobatic displays, and pretty ballets incidental thereto. It is, as might be supposed, one of the famous Hanlon Brothers' productions. The spectacle was produced in Boston last season, but since that time the untiring zeal and busy brains of these famous brothers have been at work on its revision, until it is now said to be the most novel affair of the kind that the stage has yet known. The engagement was made more than a year ago, Mr. Stetson being fully aware that no more congenial entertainment could be devised for such an occasion than one of the productions emanating from the fertile brains of these celebrated pantomimists. The Hanlons are said to have done everything in their power to make "Superba" the most noted effort of their brilliant and active career. The scenes are more wonderful, the mechanical illusions more marvellous, and the ideas of the merry clown more humorous and ludicrous than ever before. The cast has been strengthened, whole scenes substituted, and scores of new mechanical tricks introduced, which, together with imported talent in the way of acrobatic features, are confidently predicted to make it one of the most important of the attractive bookings of this house.

Men Who Know

Agree that Catarrh is a Constitutional Disease

And Requires a Constitutional Remedy Like Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Prof. Gross, a leading scientist, argues strongly that "catarrh is a constitutional disease which manifests itself by local symptoms."

Dr. Dio Lewis, the eminent Boston physician, in a magazine article said: "Catarrh is not a disease of the man's nose; it is a disease of the man, showing itself in the nose—a local exhibition of a constitutional trouble." Therefore, he argues, the use of snuff and other local applications for

Catarrh

Is wrong, and while they seem to give temporary relief, they really do more harm than good. Many others might be quoted to the same effect.

Being a Constitutional Disease the only, proper method of cure for catarrh is to take a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, reaching every part of the body through the blood, does eliminate all impurities and make the whole man healthier. It removes the cause of the trouble and restores the deceased membrane to proper condition. That this is the result is proven by thousands cured of catarrh by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

The best blood purifier, the best strength builder, the best nerve helper. Give it a trial.

"Quick Consumption."

"I am happy to say thatmy wife was cured of a very bad cough and what was called 'quick consumption,' by Hood's Sarsaparilla. She was restored to perfect health, which she has enjoyed ever since." FRANK OTIS, Berwick, Me.
